

OUR LADY OF RANSOM

Thirteenth Sunday 26th June 2022      Psalter Week 1

'Are you allowed to...? Aren't you forbidden to...? Aren't you meant to...? Doesn't your religion say you must, or must not...?' People often ask me such questions as a priest, especially when meeting me for the first time. Immediately they seem focussed on obeying laws. And St. Paul says, it's not about obeying laws, but being led by the spirit. But we can get so neurotically caught up in the rules and regulations that they strangle us if we're not careful.

To be led by the spirit is not to be led by our own egocentricities, nor self-centredness, nor self-interest – this is what Paul means by the 'flesh'. Rather, Paul quotes Jesus, love your neighbour as yourself.

Maybe the reason we like to obey many laws, and emphasise other things (often things that Jesus never taught), is because, in all sincerity, we do not love our neighbour as ourselves. Obeying laws can give our egos a nice feeling. Emphasising other things can make us feel justified. Yet are we loving our neighbour as ourselves?

Do we as Catholic Christians have the same prejudices and attitudes as many others...towards the poor...towards immigrants...towards anyone on the margins? Is the Gospel changing us? We can barely read a single page of the Gospels without Jesus reminding us to love the poor...but do we...really?

Jesus offers us an entirely different way to read reality and our politics all around us, everything. It's truly radical, not just fluffy hymn singing. Look at his answers to the three people who approach him. No messing...tough stuff.

Basically, to truly follow him, we're not really going to fit in easily anywhere. Socialists won't make much sense, conservatives won't, nor liberal democrats, you're lost somewhere in the middle, with nowhere to lay your head. You think differently." As Jesus says, "the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head".

We cannot afford to keep replaying the past, or 'looking back', as Jesus says, and let the hurts and fears of the past determine that we are going to hurt others now. Paul calls this 'slavery to sin'. There's no inner freedom, no healing, no peace. Worrying about the future can be equally as restrictive.

The Gospel is about this inner freedom – life. It's meant to free us, not enslave us to laws and rules; not enslave us to the past; or the demands of relatives - dead or alive. And free us from worrying about the future. The Gospel is good news, it's meant to change us – always for the better. Do we let it?

God Bless, Fr. Paul

From Bishop Alan: Pastoral Message Marking the 10th World Meeting of Families

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

This Sunday marks the end of the Year of the Family which Pope Francis inaugurated in 2021. The conclusion of this Year is marked by a gathering in Rome, the 10th World Meeting of Families, and as part of his Sunday Angelus Pope Francis will bless all families throughout the world.

One of the greatest insights of the Second Vatican Council is that everyone is called to holiness – to become a saint. In this Sunday’s Gospel (Luke 9.51-62) Jesus gives a clear if challenging message about the urgency of following Him - whoever we are and whatever the cost.

But holiness does not simply equate with one particular way of life. Pope-emeritus Benedict once said that there are as many paths to heaven as there are people. Though it is always Jesus Christ, ‘the Way, the Truth and the Life’ who leads the way and opens the door, our journey is unique to each one of us. If we try and follow another person’s path, we will soon lose our way and grow disheartened. Instead, we must allow ourselves to be led by the Holy Spirit on the path that is meant for us.

Depending on our own particular vocation, our work or our family life should not be an obstacle to holiness but rather the very means by which God wants to make me holy.

We all find ourselves in very challenging times- including war in Europe and increasing economic uncertainty. Pope Francis in his Letter to Married Couples [2021] recalled Jesus’ miracle of the calming of the sea and said, “Marriage, as a vocation, calls you to steer a tiny boat – wave-tossed yet sturdy, thanks to the reality of the sacrament – across a sometimes stormy sea. Let us never forget, though, that by virtue of the Sacrament of Matrimony, Jesus is present in that boat; he is concerned for you and he remains at your side amid the tempest”.

Whenever we find ourselves in stormy waters we have the wonderful guarantee that Christ, Who alone fills us with joy, is always with us.

With all good wishes and prayers,

In Christ and Mary,

+Alan Williams, sm
Bishop of Brentwood
